No body snatching allowed!

Concerned that referring learners to e-Channel programming means losing credit for the work you do with them? Puzzled about how Milestones can be shared between your organization and e-Channel and reported in CaMS?

Find out how e-Channel supports your work and leaves the snatching to... zombies!

Presented by Arlene Cronin, Program Director of the College Sector Committee for Adult Upgrading ACE Distance Delivery Program

Thursday, October 26, 2017 2:30—3:30 pm EST

From Cathexis

e-Channel is a viable delivery model

e-Channel is a less intensive, lower-cost delivery model that is valued by learners. It is well suited to complement in-person LBS training, through blended learning for some learners and as a stand-alone option for others. Integration between e-Channel and in-person LBS could be stronger.

Recommendation E-1: Continue to fund e- Channel as a complement to, rather than replacement of, in-person instruction

Recommendation E-2: Better integrate e- Channel services with in-person services for blended learners in order to reduce competition and duplication of efforts.

4. How to make it a WIN

Have you ever hesitated before registering your learners to e-Channel Blended Learning? Do you sometimes feel that your technology skills are not up to par to support your learners properly? Do you fear that blended learning might take away from your other LBS activities or impact your targets? If you've answered yes to one of these questions, this webinar is for you!

Discover what supports are available to make working with e-Channel blended learning a WIN for you and your learners.

Presented by Philippe Landry, Program Manager of the Coalition ontarienne de formation des adultes (COFA) Formation à Distance Program (F@D) and Rachel Anne Normand, consultant and trainer with COFA.

Competencies & Milestones

e-Channel Leads do follow the OALCF and administers milestones online.
LBS programs can work with e-Channel leads as partners where both agencies can take credit for administering a milestone to the learner.

Benefits of Blended Learning

- Less face-to-face instruction required, which makes it possible for in-person service providers to serve more learners

- increased flexibility for students allowing them to progress at their own pace online and to access some material when in-person support is not available

- learners may access more learning time than could be provided by either method alone
